Chapter 1 by JohnnyX

From within the void of inactivity no value emerges, and from the chaos of life, all that we can imagine is possible. In the gloomiest of our own moments we sometimes imagine the darkest solutions to our most basic problems, and in those moments of enlightenment, perhaps the brightest. Is it wrong to deny the genius that may lie at either end of the spectrum? To exploit that creative spark, we propose no more than a simple idea... to garner the very essence of creativity, to reap the benefits of the highest processes of cognitive dialect, to derive the solutions to modern problems based upon a fair and balanced discourse upon the variables of the subject at hand. Perhaps, if we may be so bold, a modern symposium for the minds of our age. A technology based, results-driven, open discussion among peers. A discussion, which, while exploring the boundaries of intellect, remains firmly within the bounds of commercial viability.

The following is the essence of the idea, an idea which will bring together great minds in the pursuit of one goal: To develop technology based ideas which are commercially viable based upon temporally and attendance limited open discussion sessions within like minded groups of brilliant individuals. I.e. to extract commercially viable ideas from a group of brilliant individuals
